

Jessica is a very enthusiastic music fan. She even plays music regularly but she's not a professional. She has recently moved from New York to Stockholm, Sweden to do a Master's study.

Because she is new in town, her connections and also her knowledge of the local scene are lost. She loved that she knew almost all the bands in the genre that she liked, back in New York. Also almost all of the concert halls or clubs that would organize a musical event in her city or neighborhood. She wishes that there was a platform or an app that was just for that. Where she could just search the name of the city, and then see the events happening in the coming days and weeks. To be categorized by genre of the musician/band, type of the venue, cost of the ticket and etc. Even some small information about the band or link to their website and works.

Jessica wants to be as in touch with the music scene, as she was back in her own country and city. This lets her to be relatively updated about the music scene in Stockholm, enjoy her time with music and have nice weekends and maybe find some friends in those events.
